Broome Community College has been considering changing its name. The College spent the last year talking with stakeholders including partners at the State and County level, alumni, community leaders, employees, students and others to gain their input and secured the services of KOR a nationally recognized marketing and branding firm to research and study this concept, and assist in the transition process. The College has reviewed all of the feedback from its stakeholders and is now ready to make a recommendation to the Board of Trustees. 3.3 Recommend Approval of Resolution Changing the Name of Broome Community College CONTINUED

Trustee Paniccia asked if retaining the name of Broome Community College is off the table and not one of the options being considered. He stated that SUNY Binghamton has changed their name to Binghamton University and the University of Albany is not SUNY Albany. These are two examples of colleges that have moved away from the SUNY system. Dr. Drumm responded that the State ops and especially the universities are moving away from it and community colleges are moving toward it. For recruiting for our residence halls, especially out of the area, the SUNY brand is much stronger and internationally the SUNY brand is huge.

Trustee Mastrangelo suggested a compromise of SUNY Broome with Community College in a smaller size underneath.

Vice Chair Orband made a motion to table Action Item 3.3 until the May 16, 2013 Board of Trustees meeting, Trustee Akel seconded the motion and it was unanimously approved.

There are nine major projects at the moment along with many minor to moderate projects on campus. Dr. Drumm thanked Phil Testa, Barry Peterson and their staff for all their work on the projects.

Ms. Losinger recently learned that we have gone from last among the thirty community colleges in capital investment to twenty-three. In addition to the new construction we have many capital upgrades being done across the campus.

The next CFA Regional Economic Development Council (REDC) funding will come out in July and the College intends to put in for $3 million dollars for the Carnegie Library to do the purchase from the IDA and the basic infrastructure upgrade and begin the capital campaign. We are working with the IDA and Kevin McLaughlin to see where we can get funding to minimize the 50% portion from the County.

In spite of an additional $150 per FTE and hopefully additional percentage points from the County it was not easy to balance the budget. We are currently planning on a continued slight enrollment decline. Ms. Losinger will present the budget to the Trustees. Dr. Drumm gave kudos to Regina and the staff for getting the College to a balanced budget. The budget is due to the County the first of May.

Dr. Drumm discussed performance based funding. AAS and AOS programs will be tied to local or the state job market or formal industry partnerships. We will have to track it and report it. SUNY has $3 million dollars for high demand high cost programs to grow an existing high cost program where we can’t meet the demand or add a new program where we couldn’t otherwise afford to add it.

There are a number of interim positions and by September 1, 2013 all of the temporary positions should be made permanent.

Trustee Mastrangelo stated that the capital fund at the state level is exhausted and asked Ms. Losinger what happens in the future. Trustee Mastrangelo also asked what the state formula is for setting the capital funds aside. Ms. Losinger responded that there was a formula six years ago where the state distributed capital dollars based on enrollments in each school and it didn’t necessarily have anything to do with the needs of various campuses. BCC has exhausted the funds and will have to ask the state and county for more money to complete projects such as the core buildings projects. There is no longer a formula and it is item by item and is focusing on facilities that are critical maintenance projects.

Trustee Akel asked who makes the decision concerning project funding. Dr. Drumm stated that SUNY Capital Funding makes the decision. For the State ops the Governor will tie their capital requests to REDC priorities and we are assuming that the same will be for Community Colleges.

4.9 Budget and Finance Update

This report is routine and for informational purposes.

Ms. Losinger distributed and discussed the 2013-1014 Proposed Operating Budget stating that we do have a balanced budget based on the assumption that enrollments will not decline more than 2%.

Ms. Losinger discussed the SUNY chargeback changes under consideration concerning charges to other counties for students attending BCC which may be as much as up to a million dollars. We will be allowed to tentatively bill other counties for their students at a rate no more than what Broome County pays us per resident student and that is not nearly as much of what we are billing out.

Trustee Coffey asked if there is no difference in cost to go to BCC or Corning Community College. Ms. Losinger replied that the tuition rates will be different but the amount that BCC can bill other governments throughout New York State for their students attending here can be no more than what Broome County gives us for incoming students. We are billing out about $2,600 per student and Broome County is giving us about $600 less than that for resident students. It will be a significant impact.

Trustee Akel asked if this will be implemented gradually. Ms. Losinger responded that they are being asked for an implementation recommendation and want to propose a five year implementation plan.

Discussion was held concerning the fund balance. We are budgeted to use $1.3 million of the fund balance this year.
